Maybe not a Silicon Valley . . . But why not a Silicon Hollow?

WEST LIBERTY, Ky.—An initiative promoted by Morehead State University's two Innovation Centers has more people talking about job creation around information technology (IT) businesses in Eastern Kentucky.

The concept, advanced by Johnathan Gay, MSU's West Liberty Area Innovation Center director and further promoted and supported by the Innovation and Commercialization Center partner Eastern Kentucky University, is to leverage economic development entities, local businesses and postsecondary institutions to create an IT cluster within the region.

Gay said he thought of the idea after seeing it in action on a limited scale in Breathitt County.

"Believe it or not, Breathitt County is a booming mini-IT hub," said Gay. Jackson, the county seat, is home to more than half a dozen small IT companies.

In the center of them all sits Mike Bryant, an MSU College of Business alum and the owner of Dogwood Technologies.

"Mike Bryant was rural sourcing before rural sourcing was cool," said Gay.

Bryant, who cut his teeth in the "dot-com" boom years in Atlanta working for big name companies like AutoTrader.com, decided in 2005 that it was time to come home and raise his family.

"We'd lived in Atlanta for nine years and had just had our first child. We felt our kids should grow up in a small town the way we did and we wanted them to be near their grandparents and the extended family… plus we wanted free babysitting," joked Bryant.

At first, finding a sitter proved easier than finding a job. "Not many companies were looking for programmers in Eastern Kentucky, and especially not at the hourly charges I'd grown accustomed to" said Bryant.

Eastern Ky. has the resources to make it happen, Gay says

Then Bryant had a revelation "just because you're in Eastern Kentucky doesn't mean your market is limited exclusively to Eastern Kentucky," he said.

By hanging out a 'virtual shingle' he soon had clients calling from as far away as New York. "Once, I even did work for an Indian firm. I guess that's called in-sourcing," laughed Bryant, whose skills combined with his relatively low cost were what helped his clients. "I can live well in Jackson on much less money than I'd need in Cincinnati or even Lexington," said Bryant. "I use that to my advantage when pricing."

After a few years work as an IT developer in the region he began getting more work than he could handle himself. He shifted some of that overflow work to contractors. In time, he began to find other local opportunities, such as selling software he had developed to a local Internet service provider, and writing code for another Breathitt County entrepreneur who had invented the next generation kiosk.

Gay believes additional clusters, like the one Bryant has created in Jackson, are possible throughout the region. "We've talked about the possibility of partnering with an already established organization with the critical mass, infrastructure and resources to bring these creative individuals together so they in turn can take on bigger projects, create new jobs and wealth. The result could be more job opportunities for the skilled IT workers turned out by the colleges and universities in the area," Gay said.

To date, the cluster of area IT professionals has held two meetings, one this past spring at the annual East Kentucky Leadership Conference and the other at the Center for Rural Development in Somerset. The group plans other forums around the region in the coming months. "This is very exciting. By using our competitive advantages like low cost of living, love of communities, and strong higher education communities, we can create a mini-SiliconValley in Appalachia—say a Silicon Hollow," Gay added.

Additional information about future forums is available by calling Gay at (606) 743-4005.

Seasonal flu vaccine is in short supply

If you haven't gotten your seasonal flu shot, you could be out of luck, even though the peak of the normal flu season is months away.

State health officials said last week that much of the seasonal influenza vaccine manufactured for this year has already been distributed.

That is because in many cases seasonal flu shots were given as soon as the vaccine arrived in September and October., said Dr. William Hacker, state health commissioner.

The Department of health estimates that typically, 1.2 million Kentuckians get seasonal flu shots. Some 200,000 additional doses of the vaccine might be coming for the state, a spokesman said, but that isn't a large amount considering the demand.

Those who have not yet received the vaccine who are older than 65, pregnant women and people with chronic health conditions should keep check with their physicians to see if they have seasonal flu vaccine available, the department advises.

The increased demand for the seasonal flu shot is thought to be tied to heightened awareness of the activity because of the focus on H1N1 flu (swine flu).

Currently, the H1N1 vaccine remains available, but only in limited supply.

22 million swine flu cases in U.S., 4,000 have died

Since April, nearly 22 million Americans are estimated to have contracted the H1N1 swine flu and nearly 4,000 have died from the illness. Of those, 540 were children, four times the initial estimate of deaths, according to federal officials.

That doesn't mean swine flu has suddenly worsened, officials say, and most cases still don't require a doctor's care.

However, Dr. Anne Schuchat of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said health officials are expecting all the numbers to continue to rise, "We have a long flu season ahead of us," she said.

Bogus bills circulated here; hard to detect

The West Liberty Police Department advises that counterfeit money is being circulated locally, and an official at Commercial Bank said people handling cash transactions should be alert for bogus currency that cannot be detected with counterfeit-detecting pens.

Police said attempts to pass bogus bills of a type that can be detected with the pens have been reported by clerks at Clark's Pump & Shop, BP Quickstop, and Cougar Corner.

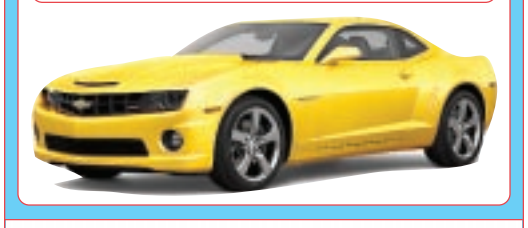

Three bogus bills that cannot be detected with the pens—a $100, a $50, and a $20—have turned up in customers' deposits, the latest on Monday. The phony bills are real bills that have been bleached and then printed over with larger denominations. Because the original ink and identifying stripe remains in the paper, they register as genuine, even though their faded appearance may cause them to be questioned.

Barker Farms LLC joins Angus Assn

Barker Family Farms LLC, Hazel Green, Ky., is a new member of the American Angus Association®, reports Bryce Schumann, CEO of the national breed registry organization in Saint Joseph, Missouri.

The American Angus Association, with nearly 31,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry Association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on more than 16 million registered Angus.

The Association records ancestral information and keeps production records on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the American Angus Association. Most of these registered Angus are used by the U.S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U.S. consumption.

Guard Turns Away Fan In Coal T-Shirt At Rupp

Woman finally admitted to Dierks Bentley concert after security controversy

Listening to country music has always been one of my favorite pastimes. Despite all the cheating, boozing and bar brawling, there are many life lessons to be gleaned from the genre. Unfortunately, I saw one fan nearly forced learn a hard lesson about country concert attire while attending the Dierks Bentley show at Rupp Arena in Lexington on Nov. 14.

I have been a Bentley fan since I purchased his debut album in 2003. Since then, he has established himself as a rollicking road warrior – at one point playing more dates annually than superstar Kenny Chesney – known for his rapport with his diehard fans at bars and small clubs, as well as larger venues like Rupp Arena.

I was elated when my husband purchased tickets to the Bentley concert. I was even more excited when I realized my seats were on the floor and I would have a good view of what promised to be a great show.

As I was standing in the ticket line, a security guard said loudly, "No! You can't go in!" to a woman holding a video camera, who told the guard that the device was not currently equipped to record.

The guard replied, "It's your shirt. You can't wear that shirt here."

From the guard's tone, I expected the shirt to be riddled with swastikas or racial slurs. That was not the case, however. I looked over and saw that the offender was wearing an oversized pink T-shirt that said "COAL" in large letters across the front, with one of the familiar coal slogans such as "Keeps The Lights On!" (or something similar) in smaller print.

The embarrassed woman politely offered to change into a concert T-shirt she had just purchased, but the guard refused. I presented my ticket and went into the arena, while she was still outside pleading with security. I never saw her enter.

It appeared the woman was likely ejected either because the shirt was pink or the reference to coal, as the garment sported no offensive logos or messages. Though I thoroughly enjoyed Bentley's outstanding performance, I still thought about the shirt and wondered, "Why?"

The next morning, I joined Bentley's Facebook fan page, where I saw a post from a man who was outraged that the artist was a member of an environmental organization known as the National Resources Defense Council (NRDC), which on Nov. 11 launched the anti-coal mining Music Saves Mountains campaign.

Recording artists who are actively participating in the Music Saves Mountains initiative are Emmylou Harris, Randy Travis, Ben Sollee, Big Kenny Alphin of Big & Rich, Delbert McClinton, James Otto, J.D. Souther, Matraca Berg, Jeff Hanna, Michelle Branch, Kid Rock, Patty Griffin, Rodney Crowell, Sheryl Crow, Kathy Mattea, Gloriana and Dierks Bentley.

According to The Huffington Post, the coalition of stars seeks to "educate their fans and carry the message against mountaintop removal to people and policymakers all over the country."

After learning of Bentley's involvement with NRDC, I wondered if someone – either Bentley himself or venue officials – may have taken action against the ejected fan for political reasons.

On Monday morning, I contacted Rupp Arena Event Manager Teresa Lloyd, who explained to me that it is not the venue's policy to eject fans for wearing clothing that displays general statements – such as the coal T-shirt.

Ms. Lloyd also told me there were no directives from Bentley prohibiting such clothing. She assured me that the security guard in question had "overstepped her boundaries" and was reprimanded accordingly.

The fan was eventually admitted to the concert without her video camera – but still wearing her coal T-shirt, Ms. Lloyd noted.

As for Bentley, his political views on coal mining are of no concern to me. His activism does not change the fact that he is a talented singer and songwriter, and I look forward to enjoying more of his music. I am incredibly relieved he did not punish his own fans for respectfully expressing a differing opinion.

I would like to thank Rupp Arena officials for rectifying this situation, and for allowing this fan to represent Kentucky coal without leaving her to wonder – as Bentley would ask – "What was I thinkin'?"

CARE packages drive for Morgan soldiers in progress

Hello, my name is Cory Linkous and I am a junior at Morgan County High School. I am the 2009 Rogers Scholar from Morgan County and as a part of the Rogers program I am required to do a community service of some type. I felt it on my heart to send CARE packages to our military men and women from Morgan County who presently serve our country, whether abroad or stateside. I want to just let them know that our fine community is thinking of them. Through the help of our schools, businesses, churches and citizens we can let them know that we are thinking of them and appreciate what they are doing for our country and community. At the present time I have twelve (12) names. Please call me if you have a name to add to this list. Please help me if you can in what I believe and feel is a worthy cause. Following is a list of possible items I am trying to gather to send.

Items: beef jerky, Nabs, candy, bubble gum, vienna sausage, beanee, weenies, pudding, deodrant (solid), cans of chips, suckers, shampoo, nuts, lotion, chap stick, snack cakes, eye drops, nasal saline spray, dental floss, local newspaper, new or used magazines, batteries, toothpaste, drink mix, socks. Money donations will also be appreciated in mailing the packages to our military personnel. Any of these items donated will be greatly appreciated.

I will have a tent set up at the West Liberty Christian Church parking lot on December 5, 2009, from 9:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. to collect any items you would like to drop off.

Our local hometown IGA is allowing me to put a drop-off box in their store, in the entrance area! I would also like to send a list of donors who helps make this happen. If you want to send cards or a note to let them know that you are thinking of them, that would great! If you need me to pick up items, you can reach me at 743-4192 or cell - 606-362-5989. I want this to be a complete community effort!

Thank you,
Cory Linkous

Property tax bills arrive in November, taxing process, disbursement of receipts explained

November is the month which Morgan County citizens receive their property tax bills. Judge Executive Tim Conley last week took some time to explain in detail everything that is on your bill and where the money goes. He even took the time to prepare a sample tax bill based on a property assessment of $100,000.00 as well as a Sheriff's receipt for property tax paid (at right).

The first step in the tax process: The PVA assesses the value of the property based on the value of the property. The PVA does not set any tax rates.

Next the taxing district (i.e., the state, school board, special districts, and the county) set their tax rates based on Kentucky laws.

You will notice on the sample tax bill—the total tax that is due is listed in the lower right corner. If paid in November there is a 2% discount, making the bill $929.04. If paid in December the face value listed in the lower right corner is the amount to be paid—$948.00. In January, a 5% penalty will be added, making the bill $995.40. After January 31, a penalty of 21% will be applied, and the bill would then be $1,147.08.

In a column at the top of the bill, you will see the breakdown of where all of the tax money goes and the dollar amount. In this example you can see that the State of Kentucky receives $122.00, County Government receives $55.00, the School District receives $471.00, the Ambulance Service receives $66.00, Extension Office $110.00, Health Department $50.00, Library $57.00, Soil Conservation $17.00.

On the Sheriff's official receipt, you will see that county wide, the state receives $427,366.42, Morgan County receives a total of $155,303.55, Special Taxing Districts receive $859,497.33, and the School District receives $1,330,825.18.

The Sheriff's Department is responsible for processing and mailing out the bills, then collecting the tax payments. For this service the Sheriff's Office receive approximately 4% of the collected funds, which is used to operate the office, pay the salaries of deputies and office employees. This is approximately $110,000.00.

Judge Executive Conley said "I hope this will explain how the tax bills 'are processed and the way that the funds are distributed to all of the different taxing entities,' said Judge Conley.

If you have any questions, you can contact Judge Conley at 450 Prestonsburg Street, West Liberty, Ky. 41472, or telephone him at 606/743-3897, or by email at mcfc.tc@gmail.com.

Highland Lodge donates to Hospice of the Bluegrass

Highland Lodge #311, Free and Accepted Masons, recently presented Hospice of the Bluegrass with a $500 donation.

Highland Lodge is one of four Masonic lodges in Morgan County – and has about 150 members. The four Morgan County lodges boast around 600 total members. Originally formed for the benefit of widows and children, these Masons have expanded their charitable giving to other organizations.

Hospice of the Bluegrass – Mountain Community (HOB-MC) was selected for this donation because of the needed services they provide to the community. HOB-MC serves around 160 patients per day in a seven-county area, and during the past year, served over 90 patients and their families in Morgan and Wolfe Counties combined.

This summer, construction began on the Hospice Inpatient Facility – a first for Southeastern Kentucky. The 20,000 sq. ft. facility, located in Hazard, will have 12 home-like patient suites, with adequate space for visitors and additional areas for family members to stay overnight. The Highland Lodge Masons' donation will go toward the Memorial Walkway at the Hospice Inpatient Facility, and will include a personalized inscription commemorating the gift.

For more information on hospice services and the Inpatient Facility, please contact Hospice of the Bluegrass – Mountain Community at (800) 560-1101.

Carter Co. women assisting Autistic, special needs kids

By Miranda Cantrell James

Two Carter County women attended the Sept. 10 Chamber of Commerce meeting to raise awareness of their foundation to assist special needs children.

Gypsy Marsh and her daughter, Mindy Flaugher, of Grayson, founded the charitable non-profit organization Nothing But A Cure in January, to fund alternative and complimentary treatment and cures for autism and other childhood diseases.

Flaugher's 5-year-old daughter, Josie, who is autistic, inspired the mother-daughter team to launch the foundation, as well as Marsh's work with First Steps, an organization that assists children with disabilities.

"Autism is the fastest-growing childhood disease," Marsh said. "One would have to live under a rock to not know someone who is touched by Autism. Our goal is to raise money that will stay in local communities to help kids with this disease."

According to local behavioral health agency Pathways, Inc., Autism is a "catch-all" word applied to children and adults who exhibit the following behaviors in any degree of severity:

Insistence on sameness and resistance to change, difficulty expressing needs, repeating words or phrases in place of normal responsive language, laughing or crying for no apparent reason, preferring to be alone (difficulty mixing with others), throwing tantrums, making little or no eye contact, sustaining odd play, showing obsessive attachment to objects, spinning objects repetitively, avoiding close contact with others, lacking fear in dangerous situations, appearing over-sensitive or under-sensitive to pain, appearing noticeably over-active or under-active, and/or being non-responsive to verbal cues (acting as if deaf, although hearing tests are in normal range).

Marsh and Flaugher have established an autism unit in Carter County and recently purchased a hyperbaric oxygen chamber to provide free treatments to special needs children with prescriptions for chamber therapy.

Hyperbaric oxygen therapy involves the delivery of pressurized oxygen into the sealed chamber, which allows the patient to breathe up to more than four times the normal amount of oxygen during the session. The chamber's pressure allows for greater absorption of the oxygen by all organs, tissues and body fluids, and promotes improved functioning of impaired organs – including the brain.

According to Dr. Geoffrey Saft, D.C., of Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy, of Marin County, Calif., hyperbaric chambers are used to treat a variety of brain-involved dysfunctions, including autism, ADD, PDD and ADHD. His patients have shown improvements in cognitive ability, socialization, sleep, calmness, stimming and language use within the first 20 to 40 chamber sessions.

Pathways has implemented several diagnostic and assessment autism services currently available in Boyd and Bath counties, including case management, applied behavior analysis, medication therapy, therapy and counseling and respite services.

For more information about hyperbaric chambers, write to Gypsy Marsh or Mindy Flaugher, 839 Hannah Lane, Grayson, KY 41143, or call 606-316-6197.

To learn more about Pathways Autism services, call 606-324-1141, or dial toll free 1-800-362-8909. The agency's service area includes Bath, Boyd, Carter, Elliott, Greenup, Lawrence, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan and Rowan counties.

Menifee Fiscal Court awarded $13,365 SHSG

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 5--Menifee County Fiscal Court has been awarded a $13,365 State Homeland Security Grant for security equipment for the county library, Gov. Steve Beshear announced recently.

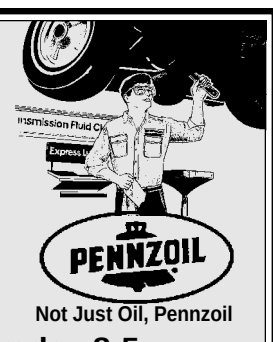

Gov. Beshear described the new Homeland Security grants vital to the Commonwealth in a variety of ways.

"First, they help acquire equipment, training and other support needs by our first responders. Second, they enhance local involvement in neighborhood and community safety programs. Third, they strengthen our critical intelligence operations, which constitute an essential frontline defense against terrorism and other dire events," he explained.

The equipment includes an intrusion alarm, fire alarm, closed-circuit TV monitor, and an access-control system.

"Protection of our public spaces is essential to keep our small communities safe for our children--especially a space like the library," said state Rep. John Will Stacy. "This will go a long way toward boosting education in Menifee County."

"We aggressively pursue increased safety and security in the best interest of all citizens and guests. And we do so in the most effective manner possible. This grant supports first responder missions on behalf of the recipient community and region. It's an integral part of our objective," said Thomas L. Preston, executive director of the Kentucky Office of Homeland Security. (KOHS).

Caney Valley News

By Tracey Hatton

Nov. 16--Hello again from Caney Valley. This is the week before Thanksgiving and we have so much to be thankful for in our lives. As you prepare for your holiday, reflect within the next week of things in your life that you are thankful for. I would like to share a few verses from a hymn of thankfulness. "As the world looks upon me as I struggle along, some say I have nothing but they are so wrong. In my heart I'm rejoicing and how I wish they could see how I thank you Lord for your blessings on me." "There's a roof up above me, I've a fine place to sleep, there is food on my table and shoes on my feet, you gave me your love Lord and a fine family. Thank you Lord for your blessings on me." We should be thankful to God for the gift of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. We need to share our testimony with others about what Christ has done in our lives. He took our sins to the cross of Calvary, dying a horrific death and then resurrected on the third day to give each person an opportunity for eternal life by repenting of their sins and accepting him as their saviour. I am sure glad I did and what a change the Lord has made. In Thanksgiving, we need to put God first. In Ephesians 5:20 (KJV) "Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

We need to recognize our family as being a thankful gift from God. In Ephesians 6:1-2 (KJV) "children obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right. HONOR THY FATHER AND MOTHER; which is the first commandment with promise."

On Sunday, November 15, Bridgett Hatton and her daughter, Jaylynne, came up to see her Papaw and Mamaw Hatton and hr dad, Boone, and me. This just made Elmer and Eunice's day. We had lunch and then just enjoyed each other's company. It was a great day. Family is so important to be a part of each others lives. Jaylynne was walking everywhere and wanting to feed herself and just taking in all of her surroundings. We never know when our own lives on this earth will be over, but while we are here, we need to prepare for our eternal home and cherish the love and presence of family. I went down to see Uncle Woodford and Aunt Berchlene on Sunday afternoon. They were doing ok. They enjoy having visitors come and see them or giving them a phone call.

Let's us then be thankful for friends. In Proverbs 18:24 "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly: and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." If you haven't noticed there is a theme, a common thread, that Jesus Christ provides these wonderful treasures in our lives. I received a phone call Saturday afternoon from a man that grew up over at Holliday on White Oak. Mr. Nolan Gullett has lived the last 64 years in Willard, Ohio and he receives the LVC. He wanted to say Hi to some former Holliday Grade School (1-8 grades) classmates. He said he went to the same school with Jimmy Lee Vance and Edna Mae Lewis. They were in a one room school house and did not have the luxury of a heated or cooled building. A fire had to be built each morning in a pot belly stove. They had to walk to school (no school bus) and they took their own lunch (no cafeteria). They enjoyed school and having friends. He told me that Elmer Hatton would say to him "Old Philip Nolan, a man without a country." He said he called Elmer the "bone crusher." Elmer, Nolan says hello to you and also to his cousin, Bill Gullett, at Malone. He talked about family. He was the son of Bill and Myrtle Gullett. Mr. Gullett is a Christian. And he quoted the scripture in Joel 2:28 (KJV) "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams and your young men shall see visions." Mr. Gullett, if I never meet you on this side, then I will see you in Heaven. God bless you and your family. Aunt Berchlene and Uncle Woodford had some visitors on Veterans Day last week. Betty Bailey Carrier and Sharon Hunter (sister and cousin of Randolph Bailey) came up for the program at the high school on Veteran's Day. Betty had three brothers who served this country. Aunt Berchlene also received a letter from a former Cannel City School classmate, Wanda Ferguson Lacy. She was the daughter of the late Miles Henry Ferguson. Wanda lives in Dayton, Ohio and receives the LVC. She recalled memories of yesteryear with Aunt Berchlene and Geneva Benton Barker and Vivan Vance. She said that they had spent the night with Aunt Berchlene and the next day when they were going to school, Aunt Berchlene stopped by her daddy's store and got each one of them a Milky Way candy bar. She said what a great time they had and one that she would never forget. Those are times that friends are thankful for friends and making memories that last forever.

And then be thankful to God for supplying our needs. In Philippians 4:19 (KJV) "But my God shall supply all your needs according to His riches in glory by Jesus Christ." Be thankful as the song says- roof over your head, place to sleep, food on your table and shoes on your feet. These things should never be taken for granted but appreciated. Be thankful for each breath that you breathe and each step that you take. Embrace life, what a wonderful gift from God.

I attended Grace Baptist Church women's group on Saturday. Raquel Gilliam presented the program on spiritual gifts. This was an enlightening experience. She presented this with conviction of her own life. She shared that her and Gary went through a study of spiritual gifts. She said finding your spiritual gift is like receiving a present from the Lord.

Oletta Crase Sallee passed away on Saturday, November 15. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Crase of Caney. She was a Christian and now is rejoicing in her Heavenly home. We mourn with the family but rejoice as well. She was a member of Brushy Fork Baptist Church and we will miss her witness for the Lord. I always enjoyed hearing her and Betty Dunn (her sister) sing "I can't even walk without Him holding my hand."

I want to clarify that Delbert Honchul went to the Air Force not to the Army. He and Uncle Woodford enlisted in the service the same day and parted at Fort Thomas, Ky.

Prayer requests and praises: Neal Clark, Oletta Sallee's family, Kay Leggs, Allison Blevins, Girlden Lindon, Heather Estes, Eunice Hatton, Patty and Cecil Griffin, Tammy Davis family in the loss of her Aunt Barbara Elliott, and people affected with the H1N1 virsu. May God bless and keep you.

Safe home heating: Avoid carbon monoxide hazards

It's so easy... so automatic... that people just don't think about it. Every year, when the weather turns cold, homeowners' reach for household thermostats, flip a switch to turn on the heat and set the temperatures to 68 or 70 degrees. Little thought is given to whether the furnace exhaust system-- the chimney and connector pipe-- is ready to provide safe, effective service. Consumer confidence in the convenience and safety of today's home heating systems is usually well-placed. The oil and gas heating industries have achieved impressive safety records. Nonetheless, over 200 people across the nation are known to die each year from carbon monoxide poisoning caused by problems in the venting--out of their homes--of toxic gases produced by their heating systems. This is according to statistics compiled by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. Other agencies estimate actual numbers at between 2,000 and 4,000. In addition, around 10,000 cases of carbon monoxide-related "injuries" are diagnosed each year. Because the symptoms of prolonged, low-level carbon monoxide poisoning "mimic" the symptoms of common winter ailments (headaches, nausea, dizziness, fatigue, and even seasonal depression), many cases are not detected until permanent, subtle damage to the brain, heart and other organs and tissues has occurred. The difficulty of diagnosis also means the numbers of people affected may be even higher. Fortunately, regular chimney system inspection and maintenance can prevent posioning incidents like these.

What carbon monoxide does to you

Too much carbon monoxide in your blood will kill you. Most of us know to try to avoid this. Less well known is the fact that low-level exposure to this gas also endangers your health. One of the truths of our human bodies is that, given a choice between carbon monoxide and oxygen, the protein hemoglobin in our blood will always latch on to carbon monoxide and ignore the life-giving oxygen. Because of this natural chemical affinity, our bodies--in effect--replace oxygen with carbon monoxide in our bloodstream causing greater or lesser levels of cell suffocation depending on the intensity and duration of exposure.

The side-effects that can result from this low-level exposure include permanent organ and brain damage. Infants and the elderly are more susceptible than healthy adults, as are those with anemia or heart disease. The symptoms of low-level carbon monoxide poisoning are so easily mistaken for those of the common cold, flu or exhaustion, that proper diagnosis can be delayed. Because of this, be sure to see your physician about persistent, flu-like symptoms, chronic fatigue or generalized depression. If blood levels of carbon monoxide are found to be high, treatment is important. Meanwhile, it makes good sense to put heating system inspection and maintenance on your annual get-ready-for winter list. Prevention is the best cure.

Causes of Heating System Problems

Why is poisoning from carbon monoxide on the rise? And why does it stem primarily from home heating systems that--at first glance--seem the same as those that have been used safely for years?

• Today's houses are more airtight. Homeowners are aware of the cost of heating drafty homes and have taken steps to seal up windows, doors and other areas of air infiltration. Consequently, there is less fresh air coming into a home and not as many pathways for stale or polluted air to leave it. And, when furnaces and boilers are starved of the oxygen needed to burn fuels completely, carbon monoxide is produced.

• Manufacturers have designed new, high-technology heating appliances whose greater efficiency helps us save money, conserve natural resources and decrease environmental pollution. However, the new breed of high-efficiency gas and oil furnaces--when hooked up to existing chimney flues--often does not perform at an optimum level. The differences in performance create conditions that allow toxic gases to more easily enter home living spaces.

• The above conditions point out a number of older, ongoing problems that still require detection and correction in order to prevent toxic gases from filtering into the house. These include damaged or deteriorating flue liners, soot build-up, debris clogging the passageway, and animal or bird nests obstructing chimney flues.

Caring for your chimneys and flues

When gas and oil burn in vented heating systems--in order to produce household heat--the dangerous fumes that are by-products of combustion range from soot (particulate matter) to nitrogen dioxide (also toxic) to acidic water vapors formed when moisture condenses. None of these pollutants should be allowed to leak from the chimney into your living space. In addition to carrying off toxic gases, chimneys also create the draft (flow of air) that provides the proper air and fuel mixture for efficient operation of the heating appliance--whether a furnace or boiler. Unfortunately, many chimneys in daily use in homes throughout the country either are improperly sized or have conditions that make them unable to perform their intended function.

Chimney Problems to Avoid

Oil and gas furnaces have distinct burning characteristics and produce different combustion by-products. However, the chimneys and connector pipes that serve them share common problems. Both systems are subject to weathering, animal invasions, deterioration and rust-out and the accumulation of nest materials and debris. Both require regular care and maintenance.

Oil

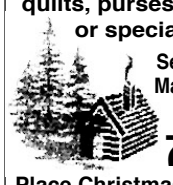

Oil flues need to be cleaned and inspected annually because deposits of soot may build up on the interior wall of the chimney liner. The amount of soot depends on how well-tuned the furnace is and whether the house provides sufficient air for combustion. Excessive soot causes problems that range from chimney fires... to flue deterioration... to chimney blockages that direct toxic fumes back into the house and cause inefficient furnace operation.

Gas

Natural gas is a clean-burning fuel, but today's high-efficiency gas furnace pose a special problem. The fumes they produce are cooler and contain high levels of water vapor, which are more likely to cause condensation than older models. Since these vapors also contain chlorides picked up from house-supplied combustion air, the flues are subjected to more corrosive conditions than before. Even worse, many gas appliances today use chimneys that once served oil furnaces. If the liners of these chimneys are made of terra cotta (fired clay commonly used in chimney construction), bits and pieces of them slowly flake off under corrosive conditions. The combination of water-laden gas vapors available to mix with old oil soot deposits speeds this process, and debris that can block the chimney builds up at the bottom of the flue. To the extent that problems with either of these heating systems interfere with the flow of toxic gases and particles out of the house, they may also force carbon monoxide, fumes and possibly soot into the living spaces of your home. They may cause a one-time, high-level exposure situation or release smaller amounts more regularly over a longer period. These problems should never be ignored.

Preventing Problems

In the United States, numerous agencies and organizations now recognize the importance of annual heating system inspection and maintenance in preventing carbon monoxide poisoning. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the National Fire Protection Association, and the American Lung Association--are some of the organizations that now encourage the regular maintenance of home heating systems and their chimneys in order to keep "the silent killer" at bay. An overlooked heating system can produce death and heartbreak. Considering the risks involved when gas or oil systems are neglected--and the benefits that accrue when they are properly maintained--you would do well to have your chimneys checked annually by a CSIA Certified Chimney Sweep®...and cleaned or repaired as needed. This can keep illness or death from carbon monoxide poisoning from claiming you or those you love.

First Things First

"Lost the keys again...they'll never turn up in this mess...we need some organization around here...no time right now, maybe later!" Most of us can recognize ourselves in this scenario. What can we do about it? Perhaps we can reassess our priorities and put first things first.

In Matthew 6:33, God makes this promise..."But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well." Maybe we acknowledge our need for weekly worship, but we feel weary or just "too busy". This week, put God first! Spend time with Him and He will take care of the rest.

A thank you to youth soccer supporters

Twelve youth soccer teams celebrated the end of the second youth soccer season during the week of Oct. 19 at the youth soccer fields. The U6 league celebrated their end of the season on Tuesday, Oct. 20, with each player receiving a trophy and the teams having pizza, drinks and other goodies at the soccer field. The U8 and U12 division had a tournament during that week, starting on Tuesday and ending on Thursday, Oct. 22, with both games going to sudden death. All eight teams in the tournament had a great time and play improved dramatically during the year. The teams celebrated on Thursday in different ways, but all players received a trophy and were treated to good food and refreshments.

Morgan County Soccer would not be possible without the continued support of the community and parents. Thanks to Mountain Rural Telephone, Caney Valley Propane, First Place Trophies, Shirts-n-More, Morgan County Judge Executive Tim Conley, Commercial Bank, Bank of the Mountains, Grassy Auto Parts, Morgan Propane, Show Your Pride Graphics owned by Shawn Conley, Ison Insurance, the Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex for making the season full of smiles, hard work, enthusiasm and good sportsmanship for 167 Morgan County youngsters.

We sincerely appreciate the numerous young adults for showing interest and being good role models for our youth. These young people include William Holbrook, Meredith Stcy, Jason VanHoose, Justin VanHoose, Nolan Williams, Emily Kelsey, Jordan Perry, Noah Kelsey, Lindsay Burton, Parker May, John Blevins, Hunter Fraley, Corey Linkous, Haley Linkous, nnd Cory Murphy.

Finally, the players are so thankful for the coaches and the time they dedicated to them. Without them, none of this would be possible. We look forward to seeing everyone again in the spring when we are going to have a spring league.

Lady Cougars enter new season armed with shooters

By David Patrick

Over the past four seasons, perhaps no player in the 16th region meant more to her team than Leslie Eagle (known simply as 'Lou' to her teammates). The point guard was Morgan County's "Miss Everthing"—scoring, passing, rebounding and stealing her way to 61 career wins. When the Lady Cougars needed a basket or defensive stop, they relied heavily on Eagle. Sometimes too much.

Now in the 2009-10 season, Morgan will be forced to win without the school's all-time leading scorer. Coach Jeff Brown returns six players with significant varsity experience—not to mention senior guard Lara Hembree, who is back from a knee injury that sidelined her all of last season.

"To be honest, this team without Lou is going to look very different, but I think the girls are looking forward to it," Brown said this week. "Lou did so many things well that it will force other girls to step up and fill that void. I expect these girls to grow into new roles and gave a good season."

Morgan may be without Eagle, but they do have sharpshooting guard Tessa Henry. The 5'6" junior took some of the scoring burden off Eagle last season, averaging just over 10 points per game. Henry is a good perimeter shooter who can also take her opponent off the dribble.

The Lady Cougars also return Brittany Stamper, who enjoyed an outstanding freshman season by averaging nearly nine points and five rebounds per game. The 5'9" guard has all the tools to become one of the region's elite players.

Faith Slone gives Morgan size the skill in the paint. The 5'8" forward put up some impressive numbers last year as a freshman—with seven points and as many rebounds a contest Add to the frontcourt the likes of Maci Motley and incoming freshman Brianna Lindon—and Morgan certainly has talent in the post.

But Brown knows the strength of this squad will lie in its perimeter shooing. Monika McCowan, armed with a smooth left-handed jump shot, averaged three points per game last season. Shey Williams also tossed in three points a night and will join Hembree as the team's only seniors.

"This will be the best shooting team I've ever had at Morgan County," Brown said. "We've got several girls who can spot up and knock down the outside shot. What we lack in defensive quickness, we make up in perimeter shooting."

Brown is very high on incoming freshman Whitney Elam. The 5'6" guard managed two points and one rebound per game as an eighth-grader playing varsity. Brianna Lindon, Coral Hillman, Megan Gross and Gina Allen round out the Lady Cougar roster.

Morgan will open the season with Pan-O-Rama games against Russell (Nov. 24) and Danville (Nov. 28 in Morehead). The Lady Cougars also visit Magoffin County (Nov. 30) before opening the home portion of the schedule against Elliott County (December 4) at Veterans Memorial Gym.

MORGAN COUNTY BASKETBALL

'Under the Radar' Cougars may be region's surprise team

Seniors Roy and Fyffe Look to Lead Morgan Back Into Championship Contention

By David Patrick

It wasn't that long ago that the eyes of the 16th region were on Morgan County. The Cougars were among the area's elite teams—winning the school's first and only regional championship in 2004. Had it not been for the likes of O.J. Mayo and a star-studded Rose Hill squad, Morgan may have won three straight region crowns.

Much was expected from those teams that won an incredible 75 games in three years. There was no such thing as 'flying under the radar'. But for the 2009-10 Cougar basketball team, that's precisely the plan.

"I really believe that we could be the surprise team of the region," coach Matthew Perry said this week. "I know people aren't expecting a lot. They don't list any of our players in the region's top 10 and they expect us to bring up the tail end of the district. But I think we're better than that. And these kids may just prove it."

Perry believes he has two of the region's most underrated players in Tanner Roy and Mikie Fyffe. The duo are the team's only seniors. Both are experienced and healthy—and ready to help lead the Cougars back into contention.

"I'd rank either of these kids among the region's top players," Perry said. "Tanner is not only a good ball-handler and slasher, but he can score the basketball. Mikie gets it done every night—scoring around the basket and hitting the boards. These kids are much better than what people give them credit."

"I think Tanner is the best point guard in the region," MCHS athletic director Chris Trusty said. "He's a great defender with good hands. He can also take you off the dribble and score. Coach Perry is very high on Tanner as well he should be. I really like his game."

Of course, Roy and Fyffe won't have to carry the load alone. Perry is expecting contributions from juniors Patrick Montgomery, Cory Harper, Jared Curd, Alex Campbell, Tyler Moore and Bobby Weighman. Also in the mix is the team's tallest player, 6'6" junior Mason Williams, who could be wild card to the Cougars' success.

"Mason was very raw last year and had a lot to learn," Perry said. "But this kid has some real potential. If we can get about eight points and six or seven rebounds a night from him, it could change the whole complexion of this team. I'm anxious to see what Mason can give us."

After stuggling two years ago, Morgan showed signs of life last season. The Cougars finished a respectable 16 - 9, including 11 wins inside the region. Perry believes that success has given his team the confidence it needs going into the new season.

Impressive team numbers mark Cougar grid season

By David Patrick

Despite Morgan County's 40-6 loss to Corbin in the opening round of the class 2-A state playoffs, the season marked a definate step in the right direction. The Cougars won two games for the first time in three seasons, while snapping the program's 22-game losing streak.

Offensively, Morgan gained more than 3,000 total yards—led by a team-best 1,117 yards and 12 touchdowns from senior Mitchell Harvey. Adam Cooper and Kyle Havens also enjoyed successful senior campaigns with 581 and 527 yards, respectively. The pair also combined for 10 touchdowns and 66 total points.

Joe Holbrook gave Cougar fans a glimpse of the future with 274 rushing yards. The freshman scored three touchdowns and two 2-point conversions. Holbrook also contributed big on defense with 29 tackles, one fumble recovery and one interception.

Freshmen Larrin Collins, Jordan Whitt and Walker Crase got valuable game minutes this fall as well. Collins ran for his first varsity touchdown and also threw for two scores. Whitt gained the initial 11 yards of his varsity career, while Crase tallied 13 tackles—the second-most of any Cougar freshman.

Kyle Havens had six solo tackles against Corbin to push his season total to a team-high 58. Ryan Flannery and Harvey had five apiece to finish the season with 51 and 46 tackles, respectively. Senior Nate Cantrell ranked fifth on the team with 30 solos—just behind fellow senior Adam Cooper (32 tackles).

Morgan scored a very uncharacteristic six points in the postseason versus Corbin. It was only the third time this season the Cougars had failed to score in double-figures. Coach Brian Turner's team tallied 20 or more points five times, including a season-high 45 points in the early September win over Powell County.

The Cougars closed the regular season in style by winning their first senior night contest in more than a decade. Of course, the 12-3 victory avenged a 56-8 loss to East Carter just one year ago. Congratulations to seniors Kyle Havens, Austin Shuck, Mitchell Harvey, Dylan Moore, Adam Cooper and Nate Cantrell for bringing purpose, respectability and winning back to Morgan County football.

Bear Scouts Score a Hole-in-One

Bear Scouts from Cub Scout Pack 111 recently worked on their golf belt loop. In order to accomplish this goal the scouts had to understand the rules, practice golfing skills, and participate in a round of golf (nine holes). The scouts had a great time accomplishing this goal. Cub Scout Pack 111 would like to send a special "Thank You" to the Pleasant Valley Country Club for allowing them to use the greens. Any boy interested in joining Cub Scouts and having tons of fun should contact Shannon Elam at 743-4648. Scouts shown above at PVCC are, from left, Dylan, A.J., Jacob, Bobby Jo, Tre, MacKenzie, Aidan, Jeffrey, Tanner.

Circuit court clerk attends Fall College sponsored by AOC

Morgan County Circuit Court Clerk Donna Pelfrey participated in the 2009 Circuit Court Clerks Fall College held Nov. 4-6 in Lexington. The Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) hosted the college, which offered 11 hours of continuing education credit.

The theme for the college was Data Driven Decisions and focused on how circuit court clerks can improve efficiency and customer service through a better understanding of technology, database management, legislative changes and court processes.

The college offered sessions on legislative tools, accuracy in case management, driver licensing, court interpreting services, domestic violence protective orders and property bonds. Monica Johnson, acting director for Trust For Life, gave an update on the Kentucky Drive for Life Organ Donation Campaign. The Trust For Life program is sponsored by the KACCC to promote organ and tissue donation through driver licensing.

The AOC Division of Judicial Branch Education provides training conferences for circuit court clerks, who are responsible for managing the records of Kentucky's Circuit and District courts. Circuit court clerks have offices in all 120 Kentucky counties and are elected officials who serve six-year terms. The AOC supports the activities of approximately 3,800 Kentucky Court of Justice employees, including the elected justices, judges and circuit court clerks.
